Get ready to dream

After nearly three years, people across the world are re-discovering the joy of travel.

Whether visiting loved ones, connecting with overseas colleagues, planning that dream vacation, or simply enjoying a “staycation”, we are all embracing our freedom of mobility once more. And here at Diaverum, our d.HOLIDAY team has been busy ensuring that CKD patients and their loved ones are given the equal opportunity to experience everything that travel has to offer, empowering you to live the fulfilling lives you deserve.

In this second edition of our d.HOLIDAY Travel Guide, we are delighted to introduce you to our newest destinations, that together with our classic favourites, means over 335 Diaverum clinics in 23 countries worldwide are ready to welcome you.

As always, we are not only here to inspire, but also to support the many practicalities CKD patients need to accommodate before and during their travels – which is why earlier in May 2022, we launched our d.HOLIDAY digital booking platform, to help make the dialysis holiday booking process simpler, quicker and easier. Our Holiday Dialysis Coordinators remain on hand to guide you through the process and ensure your needs are taken care of. Working with us to tailor a travel itinerary to suit your needs, you can plot out your travels, with the confidence that continuity of your care is ensured.

Regardless of whether or not you normally receive care from Diaverum, we invite you to explore our Travel Guide, get inspired and most importantly – get planning! We will be with you, on every step of your journey.

We look forward to welcoming you in one of our clinics in the near future.

What positive impact has travelling brought to your life as a kidney patient?

Daniel Gallego,
President, EKPf, and dialysis
patient since 1995

For many people, there is no better feeling than to travel and to get in touch with the world. Not only do you discover other ways of understanding life, facing daily challenges, engaging and living, you also learn a lot about yourself. From my travels, I have been able to get to know other cultures and enjoy unique, authentic experiences. Through travel, I have met many different people, many of whom are still very important to me; all of this while discovering other cuisines, forms of art, architecture and interesting places.

Over the years, I have learned that my disease does not define me. The only time I feel like a kidney patient is during haemodialysis sessions. When I finish my treatment, I am just like everyone else... someone with dreams, hobbies and aspirations. I aim to live a fulfilling life, as any healthy person would. I try to be active, both physically and mentally, to be on the move and go places.

It's true that people like me depend on a machine to survive, but this machine is available all over the world

More than anything, I value my independence and being able to realise my dreams, like travel, and discovering other cultures.

It's true that people like me depend on a machine to survive, but this machine is available all over the world.

At EKPf (European Kidney Patients' Federation), we promote and encourage the mobility of people with kidney disease across the globe, even those who are dependent on haemodialysis.

Holiday dialysis programmes should allow kidney patients free movement to travel; as EKPf President, I hope this Travel Guide will show you how this is possible.

The goal is to reach the horizon, which is full of new experiences.

Personally, I believe experience, such as travel, to be much more important than possessions.

Travelling has taught me to enjoy every moment and to always search for new goals. Despite living with kidney failure, I always try to find the best new destinations on every possible occasion: whether it be a few days of rest, an adventure or a big city tour. All such moments allow you to disconnect and take a break from an exhausting routine, and to remind you that life can offer many wonderful opportunities.

Costa del Sol

The Costa del Sol is one of the most popular tourist destinations in the world. With a wide range of facilities and attractions, there is something for everyone, of all tastes, ages and nationalities, to enjoy.

Miles of sandy beaches, fantastic year-round warmth and modern facilities keep tourists flocking back year after year to Torremolinos, Benalmádena, Fuengirola, Marbella and Estepona and, on the east side of Málaga, to Rincón de la Victoria, Torre del Mar and Vélez-Málaga. This area combines beautiful coastlines, with white-washed villages and some of the most spectacular inland scenery of the region.

The cuisine of the Costa del Sol is equally memorable, due to its diversity and character. Being by the Mediterranean Sea, you can expect to savour fish freshly caught that day, combined with fresh ingredients from the “campo” (countryside).

The Balearic Islands are an archipelago set like jewels in the Mediterranean Sea, just off the Spanish mainland.

The landscape is varied and beautiful; from stunning mountains to sandy beaches that run alongside by calm, crystalline waters. Blessed with a year-round, mild climate, the Islands are home to many sites of great historical and cultural interest. Alongside its delightful people, interesting customs and gastronomy, several of the islands, including the largest, Mallorca, offer world-class-tourism.

★ Don't miss:

The capital of Mallorca (the largest of the Islands), Palma, is a must. Some of its many highlights include:

- The Royal Palace of l'Almudaina and the Cathedral of Mallorca;

- Plaza Mayor and its popular shopping streets are a great spot for sampling local specialties and picking up souvenirs;
- Juan March Foundation Museum, installed in a beautiful building complete with a traditional Mallorcan courtyard;
- Bellver Castle, where you can enjoy the best sunsets in Spain, overlooking the Bay of Palma;
- Illetes – a small, upmarket resort to the west of Palma;
- Portals Nous – a pretty resort with a yacht marina, good choice of restaurants, bars and a marvellous sandy beach;
- Paquera – a small town with a magnificent beach, sheltered bay and very good selection of shops, bars and restaurants.

Costa Blanca

The Costa Blanca, (White Coast), is one of Spain's most popular tourist destinations, extending 200 km along the Mediterranean Coast. From Benidorm, the wildly popular seaside resort, to the bustling, cosmopolitan city of Alicante, there is a resort to suit every taste. If you prefer a more peaceful setting, the area is decorated with elegant villas, orchards and almond groves. This area is sometimes called the California of Europe, reflecting the large number of people who have moved here from other countries to enjoy the Costa Blanca's fantastic climate and holiday feel, all year round.

- Being one of the largest cities around, Gandía, about 100 km from Alicante, attracts many tourists for shopping, but it is also an interesting place for sightseeing.

Country Spain

Destination Costa Blanca

Area Alicante and València

València

València faces the Balearic Islands and is equidistant from the country's two major epicentres, Madrid and Barcelona.

The beaches in València, situated to the north of the port, are of very high-quality. They provide excellent facilities and water sports equipment is available to hire.

Valencian paella, made with rice, chicken, rabbit and vegetables, is the typical local dish.

The region's wine production is notable and the Valencian landscape has over 75,000 hectares of vineyards. The province of València has an enviably mild climate, which makes it a year-round destination.

★ Don't miss:

- The City of Arts and Sciences;
- L'Oceanogràfic – the star of the City of the Arts and Sciences, this oceanarium opened in 2003. With 45,000 individual animals from 500 different species, you won't find another attraction of this scale in Europe;
- La Lonja de la Seda – a majestic late 15th century building, that has been designated a UNESCO World Heritage site as a masterpiece of Valencian Gothic architecture;
- Valencia Cathedral – Gothic cathedral dating to the 13th and 14th centuries;
- Historic Centre – all of the must-see sights in this part of the city are just a couple of minutes away from each other;
- Barrio del Carmen – located in the north east side of the Old Town it is the youngest and most bohemian part of the city;
- Turia Garden – this park brings you fresh air and relaxation right in the middle of the city;
- Playa de la Malvarrosa – awarded the Blue Flag for all the amenities it provides.

Costa del Maresme and Barcelona

The Costa del Maresme in Catalonia, runs all the way from Barcelona to Blanes, almost 50 km in total. Along the coast, you will find a large number of resorts as well as many different sights and attractions. Costa Maresme is also a famous wine-growing region, with plenty of vineyards dotted around the area.

Catalonia is known for its fine beaches and old, cobbled villages. Some locations like Barcelona, the capital of Catalonia and Spain's second largest city is very busy and hectic with a great city vibe. It offers the best of both worlds, perfect for those wishing to combine a city break with time by the beach.

It is famous for ground-breaking art, architecture and avant-garde chefs. Think Picasso, think Gaudi, think Ferran Adrià, each pushing the boundaries in their field.

Barcelona has an impressive and proud history, dating back to its Roman origins; its rich cultural and artistic heritage easily combines with its avant-garde side.

The cuisine of Barcelona is a dynamic mix of traditional and modern experimental dishes, with influences from many different cultures that have lived in the city over the centuries: Italian, French, Greek, Provençal, Arab and Jewish. Gastronomy has become one of the key influences on the Catalanian economy over the past few years, with some of the world's best restaurants and top chefs, such as Ferran Adrià, Fermí Puig, Carles Gaig and Carme Ruscalleda.

In keeping with its geographical diversity, the province of Barcelona has numerous climates and microclimates. In general, the area enjoys a mild, temperate and Mediterranean type climate, characterised by hot, dry summers and mild winters.

Meet our d.HOLIDAY Coordinator

Paulina Walkowiak,
Coordinator

Paulina Walkowiak has worked for Diaverum since 2006. As our Country Holiday Dialysis Coordinator for Spain, she is responsible for the d.HOLIDAY programme and has been instrumental in solidifying the country's position as one of our most in-demand holiday destinations.

Paulina is primarily based from our Torremolinos clinic, from where we began offering holiday dialysis destinations in 1978. She lives in Málaga.

Hi Paulina! First question – can you give us a quick introduction to Spain's d.HOLIDAY programme?

The d.HOLIDAY programme is deeply rooted in Diaverum Spain's work, since we began offering holiday dialysis treatments here more than 40 years ago. Over time, the programme has grown from strength to strength – and with 47 Diaverum clinics dotted across some of the most popular destinations Spain has to offer, dialysis patients have many locations to choose from.

Our main destination is, of course, Costa del Sol, with its nice beaches, sunshine, good food and wealth of activities. It's also a destination many choose for its cultural riches, particularly since Málaga is the birthplace of Picasso. Majorca is also very popular, where one can enjoy unforgettable beaches, monuments, charming towns and a local gastronomy rich in flavour and variety. Barcelona is a favourite – our clinic there, Maresme, is the most visited one in the region, thanks to its proximity to the city, where one can enjoy Barcelona's cultural heritage, gastronomical scene and activities.

What role does d.HOLIDAY play for patients who want to travel and how does that relate to your role as Holiday Dialysis Coordinator?

The efforts of the entire d.HOLIDAY team are focused on improving the experience of renal patients coming to our clinics during their holidays, regardless of whether or not they are Diaverum patients in their country of origin.

Much of our work focuses on empowering CKD patients through continuity of care while they travel, whether they are coming from abroad, or from another clinic within Spain. We spend a lot of time ensuring they have access to the right tools and information that will enable them to travel with safety, and with the confidence that all arrangements necessary to ensure their access to life-preserving renal care have been taken care of.

We also help patients get the most out of their trips through our Local Tourist Guide for kidney patients. This guide combines travel information with practical advice tailored to CKD patients and their loved ones.

Underpinning all of this work, is our team's dedication to ensuring that each and every one of our visiting patients and their travel partners, feels supported by the True care culture that lies at the core of our organisation, in every possible way, during their visit – and encourage them to come back to us again next year!

What do you think is the major impact d.HOLIDAY has on a patient?

Living with a chronic disease is far from easy and over the long-term, can make for a stressful situation, not only for the patient but also their loved ones. Offering them respite from this routine, without compromising on the access and quality of treatment makes the d.HOLIDAY programme truly rewarding to be a part of.

I can think of no better way to sum this up, than to share an excerpt from a recent letter we received from one of our visitors, from the UK: “Thank you for accommodating me at your centre in Cartaya – there is so much to praise. Everyone was polite and caring and I was also very impressed by the way the clinic is organised – it’s an example for all dialysis clinics to follow”.

Ensuring our patients feel comfortable, secure and empowered to live out their dreams of travel is the reason we run this programme. Feedback like this is the reason we do this work and what inspires us to continue and find ways of doing better, each time.

What are the 3 main tips you would give a dialysis patient that is planning on travel?

Regardless of where you are headed to, the basic rules always apply. First, talk to your local d.HOLIDAY representative before travelling! They will assist you with the reservation process and provide you with your final confirmation letter for dialysis treatment at destination before your departure. Furthermore, you must always consult with your healthcare team before planning any trip. Make sure you voice any questions or concerns before departure, and follow their advice at all times. And, above all – do not be afraid to travel, and ensure you enjoy all the benefits that a few days of well-deserved rest can offer.

One last question – could you share some insider recommendations of places to go/see/eat when visiting Spain?

This is a question that can take up an article in itself!

Spain is a part of the world that everyone should take the time to discover and enjoy. Whatever type of trip you want to have – its cultural riches, abundance of beaches, good food, activities and more, have you covered.

If I had to recommend one location in particular, it would have to be my town Málaga, known for being the birthplace of Pablo Picasso, to whom two spaces have been dedicated in the old town: “Casa Natal de Picasso”, which houses the foundation of the same name and the Málaga Picasso Museum, one of the most important spaces dedicated to the artist.

Málaga’s famous cuisine is a melting pot of influences from across the Mediterranean, such as “pescado a la sal” or salted fish (with Phoenician and Roman origins), and Arabic pastries made with honey and dried fruits. You can find many excellent beach bars and restaurants along the city’s coastline, where you can sample traditional Malagenean cuisine, where star dishes include “pescaito frito” (fried fish) and “espetos” (sardine skewers).

If you have time and means of transportation, you cannot miss visiting Caminito del Rey, the Caves of Nerja, Ronda or the Alhambra (Granada).

Bari, a typical maritime and market city, is the capital of the Apulia region and the second biggest city in the south of Italy.

The port has a beautiful seafront and the wonderful ancient area of “Bari Vecchia”, where you can walk among narrow, stone-lined streets decorated with fading pastels and white, wrought-iron balconies and, of course, those beautiful shuttered windows.

★ Don't miss:

- The Basilica of San Nicola, in the heart of the old city of Bari, is one of the most significant examples of Apulian Romanesque architecture;
- The Petruzzelli Theatre is the largest theatre in Bari and the fourth largest in Italy, in the heart of the Apulian capital;
- Polignano a Mare – a medieval village, perched on the high and jagged coast, retains its original charm, with a succession of alleyways and typical white houses and loggias overlooking the sea. On the elegant promenade, the statue of Domenico Modugno, one of Italy's most famous singers known as “Mister Volare”, embraces the old city.

Copertino

Rich in history and tradition, Copertino enchants all those who are lucky to visit, with its villages, parties, cuisine, beaches and entertainment. A former fiefdom of various foreign families, including the Enghien, the town has one of the best-preserved castles in Salento, built by the Castriota. The city is also home to the famous Basilica Madonna della Neve.

★ Don't miss:

- Lecce – capital of the eponymous province and cultural hub of Salento, Lecce is one of the most beautiful cities in Southern Italy. Known as “the Florence of the South,” Lecce will amaze and fascinate its visitors. Its ancient Messapian origins and archaeological Roman remains mix with the richness of 17th century Baroque churches and palaces in the city centre;

- Gallipoli – also known as Città Bella (the Beautiful City), Gallipoli is a seaside city lying like a mirage on the Ionian Coast;
- The Grotta della Poesia in Roca, between San Foca and Torre dell'Orso, is an area characterised by cliffs and small, inviting inlets. Considered one of the most beautiful natural pools in Italy, this cave is full of charm and mystery.

Rome, the capital of Italy, is considered one of the most beautiful cities in the world. Its unparalleled history, the Holy See (the Vatican) and the Basilica of San Paolo Fuori le Mura are among the 55 Italian sites included by UNESCO in the World Heritage List. Stroll through the city and discover ancient icons such as the Colosseum, Pantheon, St Peter's Basilica, medieval piazzas, Byzantine mosaics, a passion for good cuisine and a vibrant Roman experience.

★ Don't miss:

- Il Colosseo – the Flavian Amphitheatre, more commonly known as the Colosseum, rises in the archaeological heart of the city of Rome and welcomes a large number of visitors every day attracted by its history and complex architecture. It is perhaps the most symbolic structure of Italy;

- Piazza di Spagna is in one of the most interesting areas of Rome: Via dei Condotti (a famous shopping street), Via Frattina and Via del Babuino (a street with 17th and 18th century buildings) are just some of those worth seeing surrounding the square;
- Piazza San Pietro – the most important square in Christianity. Much of its architectural charm is due to the intervention of Italian sculptor and architect Gian Lorenzo Bernini, who created the large 240 m wide ellipse surrounded by the splendid four-row colonnade consisting of 284 columns and 88 pillars;

- Fontana di Trevi – one of the symbols of Rome, and the largest Baroque fountain in the city. Anyone visiting must see this beautiful monument.

Catania

An ancient port on the island of Sicily, Catania sits below Mount Etna, one of the tallest active volcanoes in Europe, and the tallest peak in Italy south of the Alps. Overlooking the Ionian Sea, Catania is a splendid city of art, a jewel of Sicilian Baroque, together with the other eight towns of the Val di Noto.

★ Don't miss:

- Via Etna in Catania, the most important street in the historic city centre, called because it faces the direction of Mount Etna. It stretches uphill for more than 2.5 km, following a straight path from Piazza Duomo towards the volcano;
- Acireale – in the province of Catania, Acireale is a picturesque and panoramic town at the foot of Mount Etna, nestled on lava soil, in the midst of extensive citrus groves. Rich in history, Acireale has wonderful Baroque monuments, a lively shopping centre and is also a spa station;
- Mount Etna – a 3,329 metres high active volcano offering a scenic train ride, two ski areas and a cable car to the crater;

- Syracuse – a city on the Ionian coast of Sicily, known for its historic ruins. The central Archaeological Park of Neapolis encloses the Roman amphitheatre, the Greek Theatre and the Ear of Dionysus, named as such by the painter Michelangelo da Caravaggio, thanks to its ear-like shape. It is also said that people's voices can echo up to 16 times there;
- Taormina – with its medieval village appearance, ancient Greek soul, and colours & scents of Mediterranean vegetation, Taormina is one of the most beautiful places to visit in the world. What's more, the climate of Sicily makes it an ideal destination at any time of the year.

Marsala

On the extreme west of Sicily, Marsala is famous for the “Expedition of the Thousand”, an event of the Italian Risorgimento that took place in 1860 and was led by General Giuseppe Garibaldi. Known as the city of wine, Marsala offers easy access to the Phoenician island of Mozia.

★ Don't miss:

- Erice – perched on top of the mountain of the same name, the medieval village of Erice, at 750 metres, Erice enjoys an exceptional panoramic view over the Gulf of Trapani, the Egadi Islands on one side and the Valderice Valley on the other. Small and authentic, Erice is a maze of cobbled streets that flow between churches, squares and ancient courtyards;

- Trapani and Egadi islands – Trapani, with its sickle shape, enjoys an enviable geographical position between two seas. It lies at the foot of Mount Erice, near Selinunte, facing the splendid Egadi Islands and the famous Saline. Over the years, the city has developed a thriving economy linked to the extraction and trade of salt, bluefin tuna fish and the export of marble. The cultural hub of the entire province, Trapani houses one of the oldest gymnasiums in Sicily, libraries and a large number of interesting museums;

- Archaeological Park of Selinunte – the largest archaeological area in Europe, the Selinunte Park has myth, legend, history, culture and more. A treasure trove from thousands of years ago, yet still so alive, its 270 hectares tell the story of one of the most flourishing classical civilisations of the Mediterranean. Its rich yet still unfolding history attracts not only tourists and the curious, but researchers and scholars from across the world.

Nutritional advice for your journey

Vítor Sá Martins,
Nutrition Manager,
Diaverum Portugal

In most cases, as long as you are careful to consult with your healthcare team and follow their nutritional recommendations, and make any necessary adjustments to meals, you will be able to enjoy and share new food experiences with your fellow travellers

When we go on holiday, we relax our daily routine, and we may well eat most of our meals in cafés or restaurants. And, of course, an important part of travelling is enjoying and tasting local cuisine and exploring new gastronomic traditions.

In most cases, as long as you are careful to consult with your healthcare team and follow their nutritional recommendations, and make any necessary adjustments to meals, you will be able to enjoy and share new food experiences with your fellow travellers.

We have gathered some tips here to help you plan ahead:

- keep to your normal eating schedule and do not skip meals: eating regular meals will help you maintain your normal metabolism, make the best food choices and choose the right portion sizes. With a new routine on holiday, it is easy to skip a meal, and when hungry it can be hard to control what you eat and you may thus make food choices that are not right for you;
- do your homework before travelling: find out about local, typical dishes and food traditions at your destination. You can then assess in advance which foods are best for your clinical situation, enabling you to make the right decisions about what to eat. And before you go, you can always ask for help and advice from your home clinic team;

- do not be afraid to ask questions in restaurants: most restaurants will be delighted to advise you if you explain your situation to them. Why not have a chat with the waiter about how the dish is cooked, any detail you need about ingredients and information about portion sizes, salt content etc. They will usually be very happy to adapt dishes to suit your needs, if they understand what these are, such as not adding salt, omitting certain ingredients or adjusting portion sizes;
- remember your usual rules: in the thrill of travelling, it is easy to be more relaxed about our routines. That is part of the fun, but for your safety, it is important not to forget everything!

As a renal patient, you might need to control thirst and avoid drinking too much and becoming overloaded with fluid. You can make this easier by controlling your salt intake and not eating too much spicy food. Controlling your body temperature is also important for fluid balance – avoid hot places and excessive sun exposure, but remember too that very dry places and air conditioning may make you thirsty:

- keep your mouth clean, as good oral hygiene will make you less thirsty. And remember which foods with high phosphate and potassium content are not recommended by your clinical team, and avoid these during your trip;
- go to local markets and shops: these can be very interesting places to learn about local culture and food choices, and also good places to choose and buy the right snacks for your journey;
- stay active... even when on holiday, a good walk or other exercise is an important part of feeling good and staying healthy.

Classic Burger with your twist

This is a simple classic meal on the go, and when prepared by us, it can be a healthy choice!

- 120 g hamburger
- 1 medium-sized hamburger bun
- 1 lettuce leaf
- 5-6 arugula leaves (10 g)
- 1 thin tomato slice (30 g)
- 1 tsp spoon balsamic vinegar (4 g)
- 1 tsp spoon honey (4 g)
- 1 tsp spoon mustard (4 g)

Preparation:

1. Instead of a processed frozen hamburger, choose the meat you like the most, and ask for your butcher to prepare this fresh – this will ensure your meat is without additives. You can also try tuna burger!
2. Grill the hamburger, and then prepare the burger as you wish: we suggest to add the honey and mustard directly to the hamburger and the balsamic vinegar on the arugula leaves.
3. If want small bites, what about instead of one big burger, 2 small burgers, prepared with the same ingredients?

Nutritional composition per serving size:

493 kcal, 27 g protein, 53 g carbohydrates, 21 g fat, 551 mg potassium and 286 mg phosphate.

Fruit Kebabs

Instead of the traditional whole fruit pieces or slices, why not to try a fruit kebab? It is easier to eat, and the whole taste can be very different with the fruit that you choose.

Ingredients:

- 2 small kebab wooden sticks
- medium-sized strawberries
- 2 medium-sized grapes
- 2 small apple cubes
- 2 small pear cubes
- 4 cranberries
- 4 fresh mint leaves
- fresh lemon juice

Preparation:

1. Prepare the fruits in the kebab stick in the sequence you prefer.
2. We suggest to put the fresh mint leaves between each piece of fruit, and the cranberries at the top.
3. After it is prepared, sprinkle the kebabs with some lemon juice to keep the fruit fresh and vibrant.

Filipe's story

Filipe Almeida, Diaverum ambassador, dialysis patient and world traveller, shares his thoughts on the importance and joy of his lifestyle

Filipe Almeida,
renal care patient at Diaverum,
globetrotter, surfer and father of three

I started dialysis on 19 April 2017, and initially I didn't talk about it much. I was in denial, while also hoping, unsuccessfully, for a kidney donor.

However, ten days later, my son Guilherme was born, and I remember thinking: now, I choose to live for you. And I became interested in the disease and the dialysis process, deciding that the disease wouldn't be stronger than me, and understanding that dialysis isn't something bad. On the contrary, I am so fortunate that the treatment exists, allowing me to continue my life with those I love, and doing what I enjoy.

Working in tourism

Shortly before I started dialysis, I had opened a tourism company, and become self-employed. I'd invested a lot of money in order to pursue something I really enjoyed, but I was worried about whether I would be able to do it, alongside the tiredness of each dialysis treatment. After much soul-searching, I decided that the days when I had dialysis would be my days off, and that the days without treatment would be my "best" days, when I would need to work twice as hard to compensate for the days when I had to rest. I went to work with a sense of purpose, approaching my potential customers with a reinvigorated spirit. Sales soared, I met the goals I set for my company, and realised the importance and value of adapting to reality.

Travelling for pleasure

At the start of dialysis, I worried that I would never travel again, and thus lose an important pleasure which I shared with my family. And this is where Diaverum has been so inspirational.

With the help of my clinic, I learnt that it is easy to continue dialysis while travelling. There are many clinics around the world, but I also needed reassurance that I would find the same level of professional care when away from my home clinic.

My first step was to try treatment at a different clinic in Portugal. After that, I decided to go abroad. Prague was the first place I chose. And I remember it as if it were yesterday.

Since that time, I have travelled to – and had dialysis in – places that I would never have thought I could visit, including Cuba, Taiwan, Indonesia, Turkey and Israel.

The logistics were challenging, ensuring that there were suitable clinics in our chosen destinations. And now we plan our trips around those places. But I can travel, and that’s enough for me: knowing that I can be “on the road”, despite needing regular dialysis, makes me feel good about myself.

On a practical level, when travelling in Europe, I don’t have to pay for my treatment, thanks to the European Health Card. And in Europe and beyond, Diaverum clinics in several countries enable us to have our holidays, recharge our batteries and create new family experiences and memories.

I feel that, today, I am very much the same Filipe as I was before my treatment started.

Spotlight on Braga

We are an adventurous family, and love each day to be different. Travelling, meeting new people and experiencing new cultures fulfils us as individuals. And that is one reason why, in 2019, two years after I started dialysis, we travelled around the world with our two-year-old son Guilherme.

But first, I slowly tried dialysis treatments in Diaverum clinics “out of town” from my home city of Lisbon in Portugal. In these places, I found excellent professionals who always made me feel welcome and at home. They knew my medical background and gave me a lot of confidence during my treatments.

While in the north of Portugal, I had the opportunity to go to the Diaverum clinic in Braga and visit one of the most emblematic towns in the country. The small and narrow pedestrian streets, magnificent squares, houses and churches make it such a charming place. The Bom Jesus do Monte Shrine is an essential visiting viewpoint; it will take your breath away. Its huge stairway gives you a perfect view over the town and allows you to enjoy an awesome sunset. The Diaverum clinic is great, located just 10 minutes from the town centre, and I met such nice people there, happily discussing new travel ideas with other patients.

Braga is definitely an incredible place to visit in my country.

Provence-Alpes-Côte d’Azur is one of the most popular holiday regions in the south of France and covers a large area stretching from the Mediterranean Sea to the French Alps.

Draguignan, in the Var region of Provence-Alpes-Cote d-Azur, is a wonderful example of Provençal culture. With its clock tower, wide boulevards, pedestrian streets and museum of folk culture, Draguignan goes by the nickname of “Dragon City”, since, according to local legend, Saint Hermentaire saved the town by slaying a dragon.

Located in southeastern France Marseille is France’s second largest city. It dates back to around 600 BC when the city was founded by the Greeks as a port. Since then, it has established itself as a maritime hub and is considered one of the most diverse cities in all of France.

Joanna's story

Joanna Bernet, from the Masurian Lake District in Poland, has been a dialysis patient for the last six years. Determined to continue with her passion for travelling despite her diagnosis, she set up a specialist agency to enable people like her to access high-quality care at their destination. This is her story.

Joanna,
renal care patient at Diaverum,
passionate traveller and dialysis travel agency founder

For me, and for many others, seeing new places and enjoying new experiences has a huge power to refresh and relax, mind and body. From the moment I start to plan my trip, I am happy and excited. And during the trip, I almost forget my disease, feel joy and freedom, and my self-esteem grows. I am certain that for people like me, who have chronic illnesses, travelling is truly therapeutic, with a tangible healing power. I always come back from my trips in good shape, with better blood test results and more energy.

Travelling when on haemodialysis

When I started my dialysis treatment six years ago, I thought I would be unable to travel. My physical and mental health were very poor, and I couldn't imagine how I could combine any trip with my essential treatment. However, when my doctor told me this was not the case, I was immediately determined to travel again.

The most challenging aspects of travel for those of us on dialysis will vary, but like me, many kidney patients have other conditions as well, which present their own challenges. I, for example, am partly disabled and need help at airports, when boarding buses or trains or when having to make payments in cash.

Addressing the challenges of travel

The most important thing for me was learning to ask for help. It wasn't easy, but it was essential in enabling me to travel, something I often do alone. During my trips I have realised that other people genuinely want to help me, and I have found this makes me very happy, and it also moves me.

My first step when planning any trip is to find a dialysis clinic at my destination which can take me, and of course now that I run a travel agency specialising in arranging holiday dialysis for other people, I know many of the best places. And I always choose those with the highest medical standards, which can be the well-known brands, or lesser known, but tried and tested by me or other people who I trust.

One week before a trip, I make sure my medicines are ready, and print out a list of what I will need to take with me. If I am flying and travelling alone, I only take hand luggage, which I check in so that I don't need to carry it onto the aeroplane. I never take clothes which I will need to iron, and I use laundry services at my destination.

Favourite holiday destinations

I think my favourite place is Spain, because it has so many beautiful and varied places to visit. Barcelona is breathtaking, and I also love Seville, the capital of Andalusia. Málaga, with its charming surroundings, and islands like Majorca and the Canary Islands, from the largest, Tenerife, to the smallest, La Graciosa, are full of beauty and culture. It is also important for me that all these places are easily accessible and not very expensive.

Advising other dialysis patients about travel

The most important thing I would tell a fellow patient is simply to decide where you want to go! Once you know that (and my agency can help, as explained below) the planning can be fun. My top tips would be:

- travel alone if you are comfortable with that, but if you can, choose a friend or relative who you will enjoy spending time with;
- take as little luggage as possible;
- keep in mind the temperature – avoid going south in the summer, as it can be very hot, as you will need to take care not to get too thirsty and drink too much;
- if you have other disabilities that make travel challenging, ask for assistance, e.g. at airports, and it can be sensible to plan this help in advance;

- don't worry about not speaking the language of your destination – there are good online translators, body language... and we are there to help you even once you are away.

Running a dialysis travel agency

I would probably never have come into this business if I hadn't become a dialysis patient myself. When I visited Italy for the first time, the clinic where I had my dialysis treatment was looking for Polish representatives who could promote their clinic among Polish patients. I started to work with them, and soon realised that people wanting to travel to other places would welcome the same service.

I love seeing how happy and grateful people are when they come back from holiday. They almost never complain, but look back happily on their wonderful surroundings, delicious food, and beautiful moments, often in the sun

Now, we often help patients decide where to go on holiday, choosing a destination which can best meet their specific needs. We then take a big burden from patients, by booking their dialysis treatments and helping with completion of their medical documentation. Once they are on their way, we also offer constant support – patients we work with can always call us for advice.

I love seeing how happy and grateful people are when they come back from holiday. They almost never complain, but look back happily on their wonderful surroundings, delicious food, and beautiful moments, often in the sun.

Don't worry about travel

Very understandably, our clients' main concern is that they can trust the clinic and the medical staff at their destination. They often worry about not speaking the language, which is why we are on call for them if they need any help. It's also reassuring to remember that the medical procedures of dialysis are very similar everywhere, and we only use clinics with the highest medical standards.

People are often nervous before their first trip, but once it's done, their fears disappear. Indeed, they often choose to return regularly to the same place. Some people say that it was "the adventure of a lifetime", bringing them back to life, and allowing them to dream again. And time and again, I see our clients deeply touched by the kindness of the people they meet in their holiday dialysis clinics.

- Buda Castle & Fisherman’s Bastion – this historic castle and neo-Gothic lookout have views across the river and Hungarian Parliament from Castle Hill in Buda. Offering the most romantic views over the city, it is the perfect spot for a photo or just take in the view;
- Downtown Budapest – where business life, banks, and many cultural and historical sights are centred. Unlike Buda, little remains of the medieval city of Pest, but downtown still offers tourist attractions and fine dining restaurants. In 40 minutes, you can walk from one end to the other at a leisurely pace;

- The Hungarian Parliament – one of Budapest’s most famous landmarks. Although you can spend hours admiring the exterior in all its intricate detail, try to join a guided tour to look around inside. You’ll see the gold-gilded staircase, the thousand-year-old crown jewels, parliamentary rooms and more;
- No trip to Budapest is complete without a stroll on the Danube Promenade to take in the view.

Keszthely

Keszthely is a charming city, located on the north west corner of Lake Balaton.

One of the loveliest spots to stay in the area, it offers a peaceful alternative from the tourist destinations on the lake. You can take a dip in small, shallow pools by day, absorb the lively yet relaxed ambience by night, and get a dose of culture by visiting the town and admiring its historical buildings.

★ Don't miss:

- Festetics Palace – one of the most famous buildings of Keszthely, built from the middle of the 18th century until 1880. Today, it functions as a cultural centre for the city. The palace has its own saloon, theatre and congress hall and a wonderful library, the Helikon Palace Museum, that is home to over 86,000 books, including antique encyclopaedias and prints. Its 42-acre garden is a nature reserve that offers a relaxing area to take a walk;
- Lake Balaton – known as “The Hungarian Sea” and surrounded by vineyards, volcanic mountains and thermal spa resorts, Balaton is the largest freshwater lake in Central Europe;

- Wellness and spa – this region also offers a variety of healing, beauty and wellness treatments all year round based on its thermal springs, as well as the harmony created by the lake and the surrounding nature. The most notable spa locations are Hévíz and Zalakaros.

Brazil

48 Aracaju

Brazil, the world's fifth-largest country, is a destination that rewards its visitors with experiences as fascinating and diverse as one might expect from a continent. From the northeastern region of Bahia, with its deep connection to Africa, to São Paulo, which has the largest community of Japanese people outside of Japan, Brazil's multiculturalism manifests in a dizzyingly rich cultural and culinary landscape. Its biodiversity is equally awe-inspiring; Brazil boasts the greatest collection of plants and species found anywhere on earth, spread across the world's largest rainforest, all the way through to a vast coastline that stretches along for more than 7,000km. Whatever first draws you to Brazil – whether its kaleidoscopic culture or raw, natural beauty – its many joys may well invite you to stay.

Vlorë – the queen of the Albanian Riviera, Vlorë sits at the junction of the Adriatic and Ionian Seas. Founded as an Ancient Greek colony and famous for its olive production, Vlorë was the setting for Albania's Declaration of Independence in 1912. The region is known for its traditional polyphonic music, folklore, exquisite culinary delicacies and some of the best beaches of the south.

★ Don't miss:

- National Museum of Independence: near the port, with a beautiful view of the sea. This modest, two-storey house is filled with the weight of history;
- Mosque of Muradije – a Cultural Monument of Albania. This mosque is a monument of enormous significance, protected not only for its history but for its architecture which is over five centuries old;

- Canina Castle – rises on the side of the Shushica Mountain, about 380 metres above sea level. The castle is believed to have been erected in the 3rd century BC;
- Sazan Island – Albania's largest island, a former military facility with secret bunkers and tunnels designed to withstand a nuclear attack, recently opened its secluded beaches and sites to the public.

Korçë is considered the birthplace of Albania's literary and artistic identity and the city's charm and traditions continue to reflect this heritage. Korçë's urban architecture, with its Ottoman, French and Roman influences, wide tree-lined boulevards and ample parks provides a unique experience in Albania. The city's markets, monuments and mosques highlight the significance of this Balkan city.

★ Don't miss:

70 Astana

70 Almaty

Kazakhstan, the ninth largest country in the world, a fascinating trans-continental country, mainly located in Central Asia with a smaller part west of the European Ural river. A country of mountain peaks, glaciers, deserts, canyons, clear lakes and rivers, Kazakhstan is home to five UNESCO World Heritage Sites, three cultural and two natural. They include the steppe and lakes of Saryarka, home to as many as 15-16 million birds, including many endangered species; Tamgaly, home to 5,000 rock carvings and the Mausoleum of Khoja Ahmed Yasawi which, although incomplete, dates back to 1405 and provides a fascinating glimpse into the architectural style of the time.

Astana is the capital of the Republic of Kazakhstan. It gained the status of a city on 26th September 1862 (when it was known as Akmolinsk) and by 2017 had a population of over a million people. Astana is in the north of the country, on the banks of the Yessil River. The city was previously called Nur-Sultan, in honour to the former president of Kazakhstan, Nursultan Nazarbayev. It was announced in 2022 that the city would revert to its former name Astana. Summers here are hot and dry, and winters cold and long. Astana’s infrastructure includes trade, transport, communications and construction.

★ Don’t miss:

- The Khan Shatyr – a shopping mall with a monorail and a beach on the top floor with sand from the Maldives;
- The Bayterek Tower – an architectural wonder, mixed with an observation deck almost 100 metres above the ground that gives a beautiful panoramic view over Astana;

- Palace of Peace and Reconciliation – this pyramid was specifically built to host the triennial Congress of Leaders of World and Traditional Religions. Inside there is also an opera house, museum and university. It reflects Kazakhstan’s history of cultural and religious tolerance;
- The Central Park & Duman Entertainment Centre – with an oceanarium and a ferris wheel. The Atameken is also worth a visit, to see all the major attractions of Kazakhstan in a miniature model.

Almaty

Almaty is Kazakhstan’s largest city and was its capital until 1997. It is home to the famous “Aport” apple. Formerly known as Verny and Alma-Ata, this city is now home to around 2 million people and of national significance for culture and tourism. Almaty is home to the film studio “Kazakhfilm” as well as several theatres, galleries, museums and libraries and is the only city in Kazakhstan with an underground metro.

★ Don’t miss:

- Kok Tobe Cable car – brings you to the top of the Kok Tobe Hill, where there is a small amusement park and zoo. But the main reason to come to Kok Tobe is its wonderful view over the city;

- Zeleny Bazar (Green Bazaar) – experience a Central Asian bazaar where you can buy souvenirs, dried fruit, spices and fresh vegetables;
- Medeu – the world’s highest ice-skating rink, with 10,500 m² of artificial ice, is in a wooded mountain valley 1,691 metres above sea level, 25 km south west of Almaty.

Kočani

The city of Kočani is 120 km from the capital, Skopje. It occupies the north side of the Kočani Valley, covering the area on both sides of the Kočani River, and laying to the south of the mountain range and ski resort of the 2,252 metres high Osogovo Mountains.

★ Don't miss:

- Lake Gratche – a small artificial lake built on the Kočani River in 1959 at the foot of the Osogovo Mountains. Beside the lake, there are modern tourist and catering facilities. Situated in a beautiful picturesque gorge, Gratche is a very popular site for recreational and picnic tourism;
- Ponikva – one of the most famous winter tourist centres and weekend settlements in Macedonia. Ponikva is located near Kočani, at an altitude of 1,560 metres in a region with dense beech forests and the diverse vegetation of the Osogovo Mountains. The sports and recreation centre includes two ski lifts, holiday homes, campsites, bungalows, multipurpose spaces, sports and recreation grounds, catering facilities and services for ski equipment. Natural beauty, fresh air and a favourable climate all make Ponikva a popular destination.

The largest city in the country, and the most important cultural centre in North Macedonia, the territory of Skopje has been inhabited since at least 4000 BC. It's a city best enjoyed in the spring and autumn when the weather is at its best for visiting the city's many attractions.

★ Don't miss:

- Old Bazaar – beautiful part of the city dating back to the 12th century, when Skopje was under Ottoman rule;
- Canyon Matka – known as the valley of the butterflies, it is home to 77 indigenous species; one of the region's most popular outdoor destinations, with an alpine training centre, river rafting and restaurants set among picturesque nature with rich vegetation and animal life;
- Mountain Vodno – rises 1,061 metres above Skopje, home to a monastery and a park with a forest, accommodation, catering facilities, hiking trails and wide panoramic views across Skopje;
- The Skopje Fortress, commonly referred to as Kale (from the Turkish word for “fortress”), is a historic fortress located in the old town, thought to have been built between 10th-11th centuries.

Uruguay

75 Punta del Este

76 Montevideo

While smaller compared to some of its neighbours, Uruguay has much to offer, from the cosmopolitan capital of Montevideo, to the lively Punta del Este. Venture outside Uruguay's urban scenes though, and you won't be disappointed – the country has a variety of beaches for sunbathing and watersports as well as wild, natural beachfront locations on the Atlantic coast that ideal for wildlife-watching. Hot springs line up the Río Uruguay, making the country a truly unique and relaxing destination for holiday makers. Extending from the base of tall, rocky cliffs and highly developed, modern resorts.

Punta del Este

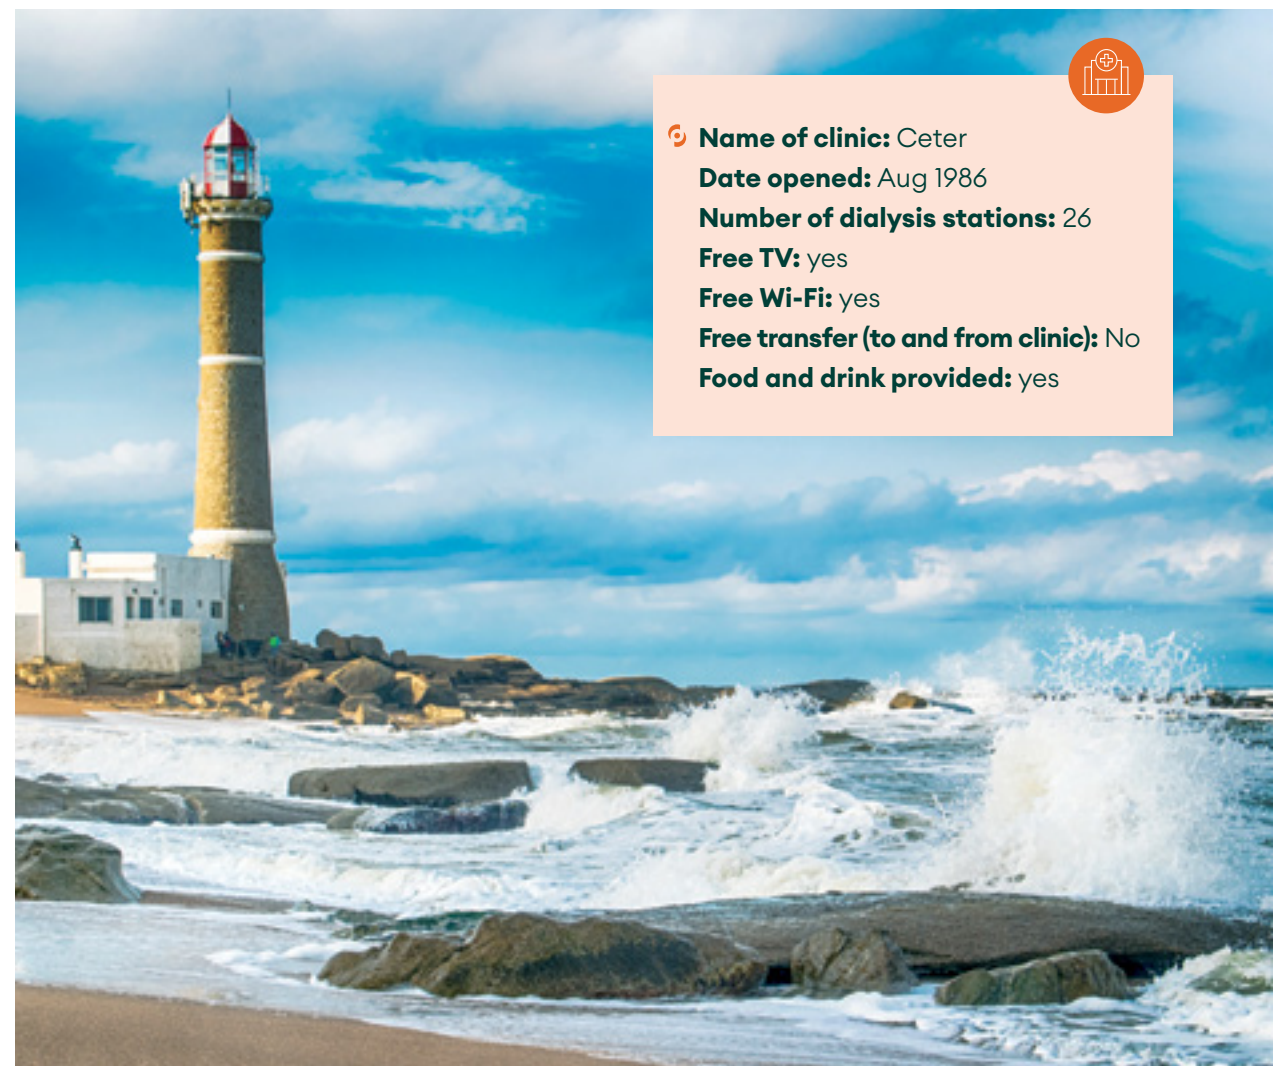

Punta del Este, in the south-east of Uruguay, is one of the most striking cities in Latin America. With its white sands, blue waters, dunes, islands, lagoons and forests, combined with varied and luxurious buildings, it offers a perfect balance between nature and architectural innovation.

★ Don't miss:

- The beaches of Playa Mansa and Playa Brava – both live up to their names; La Mansa, meaning "Calm", is ideal for young families and those wishing to enjoy a calm, peaceful swim. La Brava; La Brava, or "the brave" from which Isla de Lobos can be seen, is suitable for the more adventurous, offering sailing sports during the winter months;
- Los Dedos, or "Man Emerging to Life" – a sculpture of five fingers partially submerged in sand, located at Brava Beach. It was created in 1982 by Chilean artist Mario Irarrázabal;

- Punta Ballena – 15 kms outside Punta del Este, where the cliffs create a Mediterranean feel. Visit Casa Pueblo, an iconic building that is now a hotel, gallery and café. On the west side, a small natural harbour is a centre for watersports. The beaches of Portezuelo and Solanas are also popular;
- José Ignacio – about 40 km east, this gorgeous town sees rugged and rustic fisherman's huts alongside luxurious mansions. Carnivals, concerts and relaxation co-exist here, especially from December to March, while you can also do watersports or enjoy greater calm in the mild winter months, July to October.

Riyadh

Riyadh, the capital city of Saudi Arabia, is located on the great limestone plateau of the Najd region. It is the site of Saudi Arabia's roots, as well as the birthplace of its ambitious future. Fascinating old historical souqs thrive alongside a vibrant metropolis and sites of natural and ancient beauty. With numerous art galleries and historic places to explore, it is a perfect destination for cultural enthusiasts.

★ Don't miss:

- Diriyah – a town on the edge of Riyadh, home to one of Saudi Arabia's UNESCO Heritage sites and a centre of Saudi Arabia's rich history.
- Al Masmak Fortress – a vast clay and mud-brick citadel built in 1865;
- Sky Bridge at Kingdom Centre – take the high-speed lift to the 99th floor of the iconic Kingdom Centre for access to Riyadh's best urban panorama;

- Saudi National Museum – a must-visit location, with more than 3,700 antiquities on display, documenting the grand history of Saudi Arabia over millennia;
- Souq Al Zal – the city's most famous market. Open since 1901, it is still a treasure trove for oriental and traditional Saudi Arabian items;
- Modern shopping, fine dining and art – Riyadh Park Mall, Riyadh Front and The Zone offer modern shopping, fine dining and pop-up art exhibits;
- Edge of the World – about a 90-minute drive from Riyadh, and then a challenging walk, here you can enjoy uninterrupted views of the horizon from 300-metre-high cliffs. This is a must-visit destination for adventure seekers and hiking enthusiasts alike.

Jeddah has always been a vibrant and cosmopolitan city, and a gateway for traders as well as pilgrims bound for Mecca. Jeddah has grown from its ancient origins into a dynamic commercial centre.

Jeddah has a 4.2 km modern cornice, where many enjoy the sunset over the Red Sea while having a picnic, walking or cycling.

The Red Sea also offers fantastic diving and snorkeling experiences among beautiful pristine reefs as well as numerous beach, fishing and sea activities. The city centre, Al Balad, is a historic quarter where ancient coral-stone houses display their “Mashrabiya,” an ancient style of carved wood windows projecting into narrow alleyways where many shops are located.

Jeddah

★ Don't miss:

- Al Balad – Jeddah's UNESCO-listed historic centre where you can find cool cafés, art galleries and spice-scented souqs;
- Souqs of Historic Jeddah – the market street along Bab Al Makkah is a gateway to the other souqs scattered around the area;
- The Tayebat Museum – a fascinating look at Jeddah's 2,500 year-old history, which predates modern Saudi Arabia, showcasing the region's traditional and unique architectural style;

- King Fahd's Fountain – the world's tallest fountain is a stunning Jeddah landmark, rising against the beauty of the Red Sea;
- Fakieh Aquarium – the first marine exhibition of its kind in Saudi Arabia;

- Jeddah Central Fish Market – enjoy delicacies fresh from the Red Sea, prepared and cooked just hours after being caught;
- Modern shopping, fine dining and art – the Mall of Arabia, the Red Sea Mall and the Saudi Centre for Fine Arts are some of the modern shopping, fine dining and art venues that Jeddah offers.

Life Enhancing Renal Care

Diaverum is a Swedish-born, multinational healthcare organisation that provides lifeenhancing renal care to patients with Chronic Kidney Disease (CKD), empowering them to live fulfilling lives.

Our vision is to transform the industry through patient-centric digital innovations, delivering and broadening access to the highest quality of care.

Our focus is to provide renal care tailored to patients' needs and choices, offering a portfolio of treatments ranging from preventive care, haemodialysis, peritoneal dialysis and home care, to coordination of patients' comorbidities and holiday dialysis.

As a global leader and the largest independent renal service provider in Europe, we care for around 38,000 patients across 440 clinics in 23 countries globally. Diaverum employs around 13,000 people worldwide and is headquartered in Malmö, Sweden.

Let us help you plan your holiday!
